Pale straw-green; an ultimate exercise in finesse and delicacy; everything is in balance, and the future of the wine is assured; the only question is whether there is enough substance to the fruit to take it to the highest level.

Lightish yellow hue, restrained for its age, and a very fresh, youthful and fruit-driven aroma. Honeydew melon, straw and cashew. Light-bodied but intense and searing, with lively acidity. Bracing acidity in fact. It cries out for food, such as plump oysters. Very fine and taut, and should age very well. Will be even better next year.

This is a tight, reserved chardonnay but given time to stretch its legs it really impresses. It tastes of fennel, sweet oak, spice and a combination of ripe, fleshy peach and grapefruit. It's not rich or exaggerated but it is glycerol and lengthy. It had me at hello, I have to say, though its best is ahead of it.
