A bargain cabernet sauvignon from the five-star Margaret River region is always worth checking out. And it come up trumps too, an easy-drink, medium-bodied style, with attractive layers of berry fruit flavours and a gentle hint of oak. Just the wine to enjoy during the winter months.

The wine also contains touches of Cabernet franc and merlot, but the primary flavours lie in the leafiness and blackberry nuances gained from cabernet sauvignon. It's brightly flavoured and delicious.

The Real Review, August 2018

Good depth and hue of colour, but the bouquet is a touch muffled, while the palate has a lean, edgy, sinewy feel and has a modest amount of fruit-sweet richness.
